

Why should I attend?

On average one out of six couples experience infertility, defined as one or two years of unsuccessful attempts of trying to conceive a baby. Due to this fact, fertility clinics popularity is increasing.

In a Western world classroom there is at least one student that was fathered with the help of assisted reproduction. Statistically, 40% of infertility cases are related to a female issue and surprisingly 40% are due to a male issue.

Interestingly our society (including Chinese Medicine treatments) focus quite exclusively on treating the female. While the focus on treating the male factor is very underrepresented.

Seminal quality has declined within the last 30 years by more than 60%, resulting in WHO having to correct and adapt the standard values for the semen analyses in 2010 and 2021 to make sure that one could get a non-pathological semen analyses result.

In addition to this, the male factor plays an important role in early pregnancy loss and should be treated, alongside the female, to prevent abortion.

Chinese Medicine for Male Fertility Issues (fighting “Spermageddon”)

PRESENTED BY

Olivia
Pojer

EXTENDED 2 DAY SEMINAR*

SATURDAY 25th OCTOBER 2025

SUNDAY 26th OCTOBER 2025

 This is a two day seminar, with additional revised content. It will be an extension of the 2024 one day seminar.*

Course outline:

In this seminar Olivia will dive deep into the treatment of male fertility, as well as initial observations of an infertile couple from the moment they enter the clinic.

To enable participants to treat male fertility patients effectively Olivia will give an introduction on andrology from a biomedicine perspective, talk about research-based causes of infertility, diagnostics and the limitation of the treatment with conventional medicine.

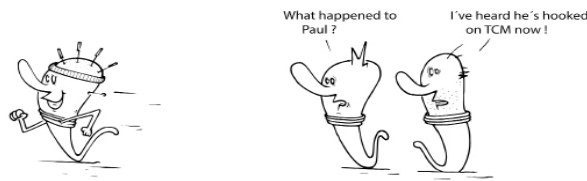

This biomedical knowledge is essential to understanding how sperm is produced and what elements can damage its development, in order to apply the best treatments.

Then the Chinese Medical part will be explored, participants will gain knowledge on pattern differentiation, diagnostics, acupuncture treatment and herbal prescription to support the sperm quality.

Participants will walk away from this seminar with an integrative toolbox to successfully treat male fertility in their clinic.

What you will learn:

- A clear overview of male reproductive anatomy and physiology
- How sperm is produced and the role of hormones from both Western and Chinese Medicine perspectives
- The most common, research-backed causes of male infertility
- Basic pattern differentiation for male infertility and how to select effective acupuncture points
- Key guiding formulas to treat common patterns using Chinese herbal medicine
- Modern reproductive techniques: sperm selection, DNA integrity testing, and lab fertilisation
- How to regulate the Hypothalamus-Pituitary-Testis axis with Chinese herbs and formulas
- The role of supplements, regulating the testicular microbiome, and reducing oxidative stress (ROS)
- New insights on the impact of HPV on male fertility and what to do about it
- Understanding and treating azoospermia from both biomedical and TCM perspectives
- How to interpret semen analysis from a Chinese Medicine viewpoint
- Treating sperm pathologies according to Chinese Medicine principles
- Expand on your knowledge learning more in depth pattern differentiation, acupuncture points (including extraordinary vessels), herbs and formulas
